

We would like to find out what you think of our plans.

This will help us make the right decisions and give you the support you need.

Our Plans

We want to improve mental health care for adults and people with dementia.

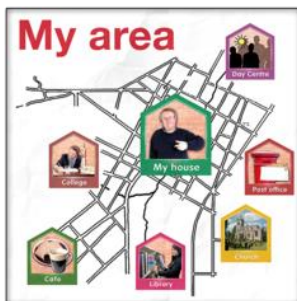

This means we will be making changes to Some services.

The Harold Kidd Unit in Chichester and The Iris Ward in Horsham are old buildings.

We would like wards to be safer, more modern places for people to get care.

To make this happen we would like to move people to bigger and better hospitals in Worthing and Crawley.

Some people might be nearer to home after the move.

Other people might be further away.

We want to know what we can do to support people and their carers and families

Why we think this would be a good idea

At the moment there are mixed wards of men and women together.

NHS standards say that wards should be single sex.

Single Sex wards are wards just for men and wards just for women.

We think that people will get better care and feel safer.

Moving will help us make sure people can be in single sex wards.

There will also be more staff onsite in bigger hospitals.

- Working with staff from other teams improves care for patients
- There are lots more experts in the building

People are living a lot longer. They need more support as they get older.

Lots of people need specialist dementia support

Moving to Crawley and Worthing would be a chance to set up a specialist centre for dementia and older people
